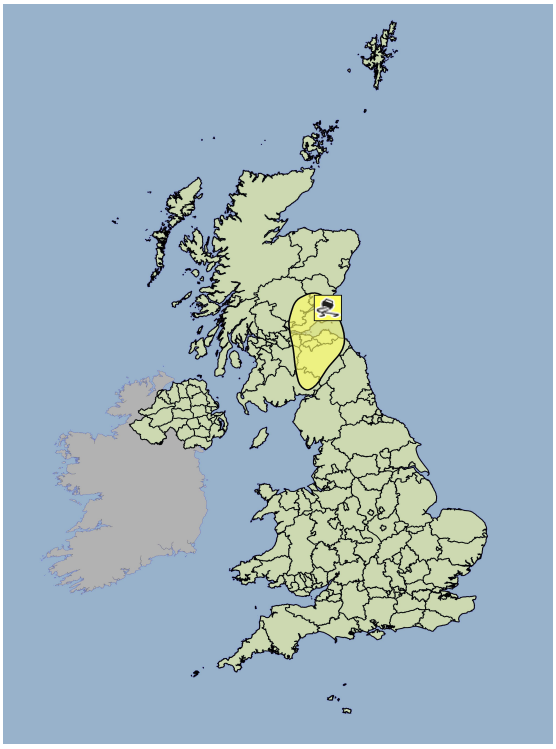
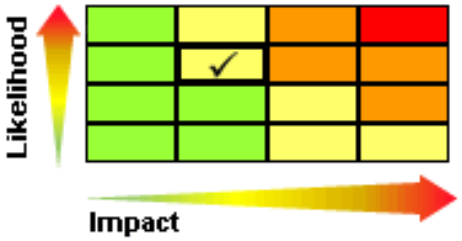
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Clear skies will allow temperatures to fall widely below freezing this evening on Thursday evening. This will allow icy stretches to form on untreated surfaces, especially where roads and pavements are still snow covered, or where surfaces are wet from partially melted snow.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 15:00 on Thu, 14th Jan 2016 until 11:00 on Fri, 15th Jan 2016

As temperatures fall on Thursday evening icy stretches will form on many untreated surfaces. On Friday morning there is also the chance of some light snow showers in the west of the warning area giving 1-2 cm locally. Please be aware of the potential for difficult travel conditions, and drivers are advised to take extra care.
